

Abstract

A random data generator for reproducing a random data stream producible by an identical generator at another location, comprising: an input means for receiving a bit stream, a random selector for selecting random 5 individual bits from said bit stream to form a random data stream, and wherein said random selector is randomized by a previous segment of said random data stream. The generator allows process running at two separate locations to make use of the same random data.